ROTE SPOKES

Several Rotarians made themselves conspicuous by their absence at the last weekly meeting, July 10th. Inasmuch as this column is written more for general public appeal, it would not be appropriate to administer a dressing-down here. Anyhow fellows, don't let the "dog days" prevent you from doing your duties as a Rotarian. Attendance is one of your major duties and if holidays prevent you from attending here, why don't you make it up by visiting a Rotary Club in the neighborhood of where you are vacationing? That is one of the aims of Rotary — to promote fellowship. What better way than to visit out-of-town clubs? C.R. promises to be a grand president. During his year he will devote many, many hours of time to Rotary. Surely you can give an hour and a half to Rotary once a week.

The meeting on Monday was pretty well taken up with discussions on committee work and programs for the years activities. L. A. as retiring secretary gave a financial report, and while the club is not wealthy it is at least solvent. A good deal of good-natured joshing attended this.

Britann Went Too Fast

Human nature being what it is, the large majority of people want to secure for themselves as large a slice of cake as possible. Everyone will agree that there should be provided for everyone as high a minimum standard of living as can be borne by the nation. I do not believe that it is a satisfactory solution to leave this welfare supplement to the goodwill and generosity of individuals or companies. Here in England we have had many instances of highly developed welfare schemes which do not, however, touch the vast bulk of workers.

We have in power again by the slenderest majority a government which believes in spoon-feeding the community from before birth until the last spade of earth rattles on the coffin lid. Money has been squandered to try to remedy, in a few years, the squalor, ignorance, disease and poverty of which we still have too many examples.

It would have been better to hasten slowly and not to proceed on the assumption that the national purse is limitless. Nor is it likely that as the cost of these benefits increases (provide pensions), the working man, from whom the bulk of our revenue comes, will be willing to provide the wherewithal.

New Helmsman

With July 1st as "shoving off" point, Rotary sets sail upon a new administrative year. At the helm will be Arthur Laqueux, new International President from Quebec, whose hobby, incidentally, is yachting. Taking office too, will be the members of Rotary's new Board, which holds a meeting in Chicago July 1, with preliminary discussions on June 28, 29, 30. Some 190 new District Governors also begin their work, as outgoing Rotary Club officers make way for their successors.

Assemblies

First act of Rotary's new District Governors will be to call District Assemblies of new officers of all their

WHEN THE SLIP GETS BY

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly;

You can hunt until you're dizzy, but it somehow will get by.

Till the forms are off the presses it is strange how still it keeps.

It shrinks into a corner and it never stirs or peeps.

The typographical error, too small for human eyes,

Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.

The boss he stares with horror, then grabs his hair and groans;

The proofreader drops his head upon his hands and moans.

The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be,

But the typographical error is the only thing you see.

Artery of Civilization
PRINTING

This is a reprint article taken from the CIL Oval written by L. C. Hazelton

The man who first made and used movable types was Johann Gutenberg. In Mainz, Germany, between the years 1410-1450, Gutenberg invented a way to make large numbers of individual pieces of type so that they could be put together to form words, paragraphs and pages. The assembled type was inked, printed on paper in as many copies as desired, then broken down and used again for other printings.

As previous forms of the written word could not be quickly duplicated and had reached the eyes of only the few, Gutenberg's invention was revolutionary. His movable types had made mass printing possible.

Welling Notes

(Faye Stringham)

Mrs. Minnie Wilde is spending a few weeks in Ogden, Utah with her sister, Eliza Whitmer who was a recent visitor here.

Many people from here have been Waterton visitors so far this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Muhetien of Provo, Utah spent a week visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wolsey, Jr. and family spent their holidays in Edmonton.

The hailstorm that hit Welling recently did considerable damage. The pea crops are a total loss and the beets are set back. Windows in Kirk Bullocks new home were broken and the roof of Gordon Wilde's barn was blown across the road, taking the telephone wires with it.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bullock and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Bullock are spending a few days in Calgary and Jasper Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Ad Eakens, Mr. and Mrs. J. Redd and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eakens are visiting in Provo, Utah.

The second hailstorm to hit this area caused almost one hundred per cent loss to the farm of Jesse Wilde.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Johansen and family of Castledale, Utah were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Meldrum. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum and their guests drove to Cardston to visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Johansen.

The Lions slogan, Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nations Safety, is in the mind of every person that believes in democracy.

The three leading forms of government in the world today are Communism, Socialism and Democracy. Communism is a dictatorship that confiscates all privately owned capital and goods and controls and regulates all social, economic and cultural activities, production and distribution, credit and finances and labor, in short, everything. Socialism is a political and economic theory of social organization based on collective or governmental ownership and democratic rule. In a democracy, supreme power is retained by the people and exercised either directly or indirectly through a system of representation.

I recently reviewed the story of the American Liberty Bell which stands before all America as a symbol of our liberty. The story of the Bell starts with a letter from the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania to Robt. Charles, Colonial Agent for the Province in London. This letter requested that he "procure a bell from England of about 2,000 pounds in weight, the cost of which may amount to 100 pounds sterling. Let the bell be cast by the best workmen and examined carefully before shipping."

The bell was cast in London and arrived in Philadelphia in late August, 1752. It hung above the State House yard, now known as Independence Square and to test its sound before being raised to the tower the bell was recast by Pass, Pass and Stow, workmen from Philadelphia.

To recast the bell the original English model was broken up and the same metal plus the addition of one and one half ounces of American copper to each pound of the old bell was used. The copper was added to make the bell less brittle and keep it from cracking and to give it a better tone.

This great bell tolled out the proclamation of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 8, 1776. From that date until 1835 the Bell recorded the events of the Revolution. In the year 1835 it cracked while tolling the death of Chief Justice John Marshall of the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1846 the Bell was drilled out to separate the parted sides with the hope of restoring the Bell's tone. This did not prove successful and so the Bell was not rung again until the end of World War II.

Around the top of the Bell is inscribed, in the original style of lettering, "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the Land unto all the Inhabitants Thereof". The Bell was purchased to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of Pennsylvania under the English Charter of 1701 and that inscription was taken from the 25th chapter, 10th verse of the Book of Leviticus which refers to a 50th anniversary, to some people it seems almost prophetic.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Johansen and family of Castledale, Utah were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Meldrum. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum and their guests drove to Cardston to visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Johansen.

Serving one of Canada's richest irrigated mixed farming districts.

Quite some time ago a great deal of work was done cleaning up the back alley. Great deal was displayed until, for some reason or other, the workers came to the north side of the street that runs in front of the Recorder office. A great heap of rubble was removed from the vacant lot, for which we are grateful, but the job was not finished. Could we appeal to someone — anyone — to get rid of that pile of junk and also to move the growing pile of refuse farther down the alley (after the rain, of course)? We would appreciate it and I'm sure that the horde of flies, now having a great time there, can find another hangout.

CAMPING TIPS

Camping in the summer is very popular and happy, satisfying life in the out-of-doors is enjoyed by thousands of people, old and young. Some parents who have had unsatisfactory camping experiences when they were young or who have never had the opportunity to go camping, are usually not keen about it. But there is no doubt about enthusiasm for camping on the part of the average boy or girl. Participation in camping is a heritage of youth, and the young of heart will always enjoy it.

No one gets the most out of life unless he is well and the camper is no exception to this rule. The very first rule in keeping fit when on a camping trip is to take no chances with drinking water. When in doubt always boil it. The clear, sparkling appearance of water is no proof that it does not contain harmful germs! If boiled water is allowed to cool for a considerable time the taste is improved. Pasteurized, not "raw" milk is another rule for good health. Often campers make the mistake of eating too much heavy, concentrated foods. Out door appetites are keen and larger amounts of food are likely to be consumed. Fruit juice, cooked and raw (carefully washed) fruit and vegetables both cooked and raw in salads should form a generous part of a balanced camp diet.

Sunburn, insect bites and poison ivy rash spoil many an otherwise happy vacation. Gradual exposure to the bright sunshine and protecting the skin with cream or oil when first taking sunbaths are both important. Red haired and fair people are more likely to get a bad sunburn than brunettes. Some individuals are more susceptible to sunstroke than others so avoid the risk and wear a hat or cap when out in the direct rays of the sun.

There are many preparations on the market that are more or less successful in keeping the insects away. Recently it has been found that insects are not attracted to the light of a yellow light like they are to the light of an ordinary one. A yellow cellophane covering for the end of a flashlight is worth trying out. A bad bite should be treated immediately with antiseptic lotion. A small pack of baking soda is also a great comfort.

Poison ivy discomfort can best be avoided by teaching even small children to recognize and keep away from this three leaved demon vine of the woods. If a bad case of poison ivy develops it should not be fooled with, but should receive proper medical attention. There should be an adequate First Aid Kit included in all camp sets. Treatment for burns, stings, bites and a lotion for poison ivy treatment should be included in it.

Suitable and attractive clothes for camping receive so much publicity in magazines, papers and store displays that they need not be described here.

On a hiking trip it is necessary to have light weight equipment. Light aluminum is used extensively for cooking dishes and cutlery and plastic cups in gay colors are popular.

Food should be carried in satisfactory containers so that greasy foods such as bacon and those with a strong odor such as onions are not mixed in with other supplies.

A "house-wife" with needles, thread, scissors and safety pins should also form part of every campers equipment. Last but not least, do not forget to leave the camp-ground in better shape than you found it. Be careful to extinguish completely all campfires. Never let an act of carelessness on your part rob Canada of her rich forest reserves.

Average weekly wages paid to hourly-rated wage earners employed by leading Canadian manufacturing establishments reached a new peak of $43.10 during the week ending March 1, 1950.

Better Weed Control

Reports presented at the Third Western Canadian Weed Control Conference, held recently at Edmonton, show that very substantial progress is being made in this country toward better farm weed control.

Chemical Treatments. One of the most remarkable recent achievements in the history of prairie agriculture is the development and use of chemicals, particularly 2,4-D, for controlling weeds in growing crops. The rapidity with which this practice has been adopted by western farmers is almost sensational. In 1947, not more than 500 thousand acres of grain crops in the Prairie Provinces were treated with 2,4-D. This increased to 4 million acres in 1948; and, in 1949, to 8 1/2 million acres, or 21 per cent of the entire grain crop acreage. Thus, within 3 years the use of 2,4-D has become a well established farm practice in Western Canada.

The results of recent research and wide field experience show that many encouraging things are in prospect for farm weed control with chemicals. Two of the most important of these are (1) chemicals which can be used to control weeds not affected by 2,4-D, and (2) improvement in methods and machinery for applying chemicals, particularly for the control of weeds in growing crops.

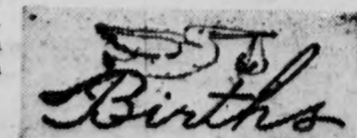

Cultural Treatments. Again, the importance in weed control of good cultural methods and cropping practices must be forcibly emphasized. First of all, it is known that 2,4-D treatments are not nearly as effective in eradicating weeds, as they are in controlling them. Second, there are a number of destructive weeds which cannot be controlled by chemical treatment. If western farmers are to win the final battle against weeds they must continue to make full use of the "old reliables," namely, good cultural and cropping practices, good seed, and soil fertility maintenance.

For the latest information on chemical and other weed control methods consult your local Agricultural Representative, or write to Line Elevator Farm Service, Winnipeg or Calgary.

A frog was caught in a deep rut in the road. His friends rallied around him but their combined efforts could not get him out. One by one they left him to struggle alone. They waved their farewells. He was in despair. Next day he was seen hopping along, no longer in the rut, and chipper as you please. "Say, what are you doing here?" asked a friend. "I thought you couldn't get out of that rut." "Neither did I," said the frog "but a truck came along and I had to."

Construction crews of the Calgary Power company arrived early this week to string power lines in the new rural areas and good progress is being made. More than eleven miles were installed during the first three days and completion of the area, involving some 80 miles of power line, is expected this month. There is a total of 77 subscribers for the power in this district.

Ex. Field Day

We print the following letter to give all our readers an opportunity to learn of the Annual Field Day at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm.

Dear Friend:

The annual Field Day at the Lethbridge Experimental Station will be held on Wednesday, July 26 commencing at 9 a.m. This year our program will emphasize irrigation farming. With the rapid expansion of irrigation in Southern Alberta, you will undoubtedly have many questions concerning the use of sprinkler irrigation vs. flood irrigation, the proper cultural practice for irrigated land, maintaining soil fertility, and probably most important, the crops to grow that will return the greatest revenue per acre. The comparative returns from livestock on irrigated pastures as compared to special crops (sugar beets, canning crops etc.) and grain production has been a question in the minds of many people. To answer this question we have been very fortunate in securing for our special speaker, R. G. Johnson of Montana State College. Mr. Johnson, an outstanding authority on range and pasture management, will discuss irrigated pastures for livestock production at 2 p.m.

There will be tours to the various experimental plots and fields commencing at 9 a.m. These tours will feature new varieties of forage and cereal crops, fertilizer treatments, crop rotations, chemical weed control, new varieties of vegetables, livestock and special displays. There will also be conducted tours through the Science Service Laboratories and the Livestock Insect Laboratory.

For the ladies there will be tours to the lawns, shrubs and gardens, and for the children there will be races, games and free movies.

Plan now to attend this annual event. Bring the family and your lunch. Picnic tables, free coffee, milk and cream will be provided.

A special invitation is extended to come and meet their farm friends.

Yours sincerely,

Clubs for the joint planning of the year's work in their areas. July is the big month for District Assemblies, with some going over into August and September.

Still Growing

With more and more clubs placing "Report on U.N." in the hands of Rotarians, schools, libraries and community leaders, the monthly bulletin has tripled the number of its paid subscriptions in the past Rotary year. Total monthly distribution is now 12,800 copies. Published in English, French and Spanish by Rotary International, "Report" reports tersely and objectively on United Nations news. Sales of "From Here On" and "The World at Work" booklets on the U.N., also published by R.I., continued steady throughout the year.

Vital Statistics

On May 25 there were 7,080 Clubs and an estimated 340,500 Rotarians.

Are You Emotionally Mature?

Ask yourself these 18 questions and give yourself the honest answers:

1. Are you reluctant to make decisions?
2. Is there someone to whom you regularly bring your more difficult problems?
3. Do you find it difficult to live within your income?
4. Have you a great deal of domestic trouble?
5. Are you subject to colds, headaches, stomach upsets, constipation, colitis, etc.?
6. Do you feel that your employers have treated you unfairly?
7. Are you convinced that it is the responsibility of government to take care of you should you find yourself in need?
8. Do you have to eat (nibble), chew or smoke constantly to keep from becoming tense?
9. Do you like to be the centre of attention at parties?
10. Are you a frequent patron of small-loan agencies?
11. Do you find it important to have only the best car, house, clothes etc.?
12. Do you look for "hot tips" for investments or bets?
13. Do you find it extremely difficult to do unpleasant things, e.g., visit the dentist?
14. Do you experience great but transient enthusiasms for people, things and causes?
15. Are you proud of being "Different", a nonconformist?
16. Are you inclined to boast about your prowess at cards, with the bottle, or with the other sex?
17. Have you changed jobs with frequency (average two a year)?
18. Are you quite conscious of your superiority over your friends and associates?

Everyone exhibits nearly all of these traits at some time. But if these descriptions fit your habits and if you answer "Yes" to more than half of the questions, there is considerable probability that you have not attained emotional maturity.

Until next week this is your Rote Reporter who wonders if any holiday ever lives up to your expectations, except in expense.

Come to Church

"The hour shall be filled with music, With songs, and praise, and prayer; And the burdens of life shall be lifted From all who enter there."

It is good for us in the general uproar of the world to pass through a season of quiet meditation and put our fingers on our spiritual pulses and see what kind of life we are living. We cannot best estimate our own life in the noise of the street and the turbulence of the world and need to retire within and shut the door that we may see with a quiet eye and balanced judgment what manner of persons we are. The world is too much with us, and late or soon we spend our spiritual substance in worldly ambitions and anxious living. Simply to step into the seclusion and quiet of a church tends to cool our fevered pulses and calm our agitated hearts and give us peace. God is the great need of our souls, and while we should always live in His presence, yet there are times and means for realizing in a special degree His nearness.
